

ELIZABETH, N.J.
JOURNAL

E. 56,275

APR 29 1966

FOIAb3b

CPYRGHT

Case Feels CIA Quiz 'Useful'

CPYRGHT

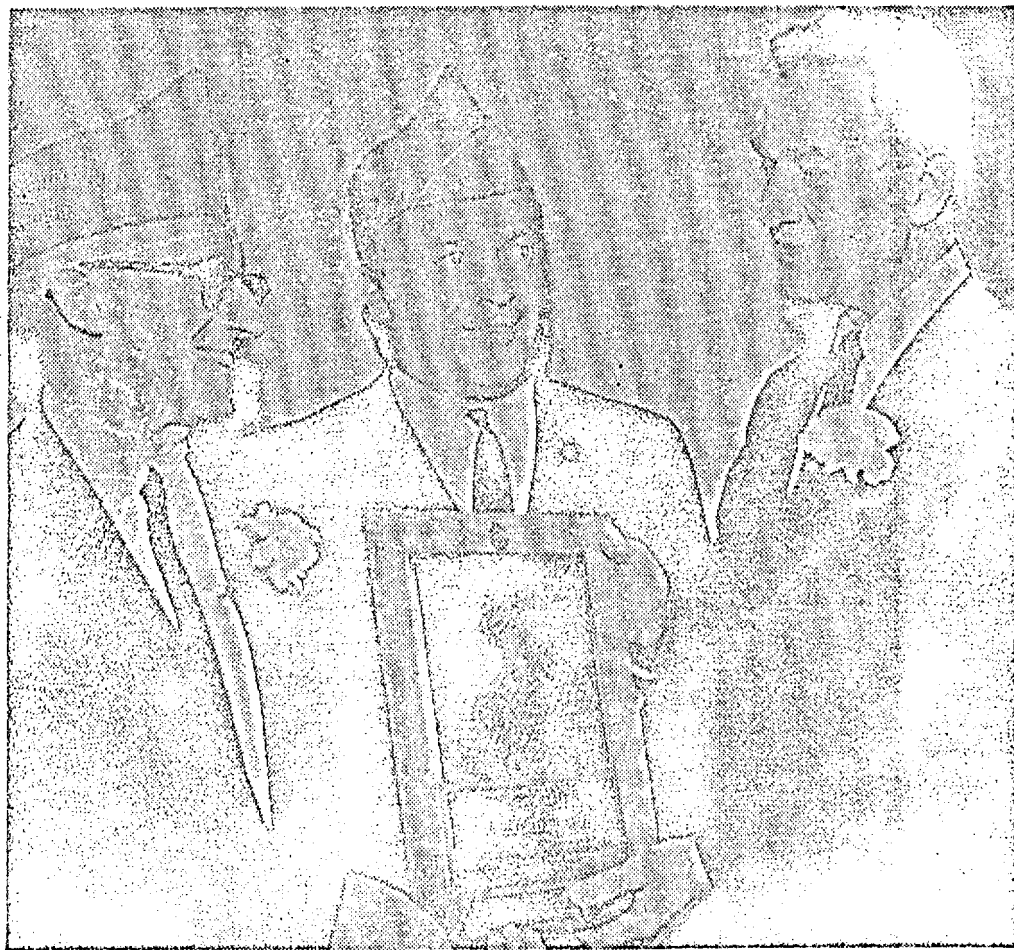

HILLSIDE—U.S. Sen. Clifford P. Case (R-N.J.) last night asserted he is confident that a solution will be found for "the troublesome questions that surround the Central Intelligence Agency, if we persevere—and persevere we must."

The senator was the recipient of the annual John F. Kennedy Memorial Award presented by Elin-Unger Post 273, Jewish War Veterans, at the annual installation ceremonies of the post and its Ladies' Auxiliary. The affair was at the Sinai Youth Center.

"It should be no secret to the American people, I believe," the senator continued, "that the entire subject is sensitive in the extreme. As members of an 'open society,' we do and must demand the fullest possible public access to the public's business."

"At the same time, we are acutely aware that we must not jeopardize the lives of those who serve our country or the nation's security itself. How to resolve the conflicts that arise between these objectives is a problem for which we must continue to seek effective solutions."

"Presently a small group of senior members of the Senate and the House Armed Services and Appropriations Committees maintain a degree of liaison with the CIA. The possibility of expanding this group to include members of the two committees primarily concerned with the foreign affairs is now under discussion. As a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, I am glad that this is being explored."

—Daily Journal Photo by Joseph Buscaino.

Sen. Clifford P. Case, right, displays the John F. Kennedy Memorial Award presented by JWV in Hillside. Looking on are, left, Bernard Abrams, past national JWV commander, and Milton A. Waldor, national JWV commander.

"Whether Congress should embark on a more formal arrangement is still an open matter. There are drawbacks to the proposal that we establish a committee with powers similar to those of the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy. But the discussion in which we are now engaged is necessary and useful, I believe, in coming to grips with the questions," he concluded.

Milton A. Waldor, national commander, installed post officers as follows: Commander, Leslie Sogal; vice commanders, Barry Friedman and Harold Lubell; judge advocate, Harvey Friedman; adjutant, Ralph Walzer; quartermaster, Philip Sogal; chaplain, Martin Goldberg; officer of the day, Hyman Reinstein, and service officer, Harold Egna.

Mrs. Shirley Zuckerman, Essex County auxiliary president, installed officers as follows: President, Mrs. Miriam Wortzel; vice presidents, Mrs. Mae Minkoff and Mrs. Blanche Egna; treasurer, Mrs. Esther Mann; chaplain, Mrs. Dorothy Saffer; conductress, Mrs. Eleanor Weissman; trustees, Mrs.

Fanny Mark, Mrs. Gertrude Marcus and Mrs. Lillian Finckelstein; financial secretary, Shirley Goldberg; guard, Mrs. Sylvia Gillule; patriotic instructor, Mrs. Miriam Riffin; historian, Mrs. Lillian Bogner; delegate, Mrs. Martha Vice, and alternate, Mrs. Ann Sornstein.